This final question is worth 50 points. Solve this riddle, and you’ll be our Tasty Trivia Champion!

Here’s the riddle: I have no meat and can’t eat vegetables, yet I’m found in both food groups. What am I?

Huh?!?!?

I know this!

You are correct! Congratulations, Penny, you’re the big winner for today’s Tasty Trivia Challenge!

Dan, the answer is legume—like peas, lentils, and chickpeas!

Gee, I guess I should have given peas a chance!
Welcome to the final round of our trivia show. Today’s topic is foods. Our finalists are Samuel Sweet and Penny Pea. Who will win?

Contestants, which of these have been found in ancient caves in Asia? The choices are spinach, peas, or maize.

Maize!

Peas!

Oh, I am sorry, Samuel. Peas, lentils, and chickpeas dating back 11,000 years have been found in Asia.

Could peas really have pleased way back then?

Good thing I’ve been studying!

Next question: Which U.S. president worked hardest to promote “peas on earth”?

Jefferson! He grew over 30 varieties of peas in his garden!

Looks like someone is “grump-pea”!

Gee, that was a “peas-of-cake”!
